RATS CARRYING EGGS. Omaha Man Watches the Perform-

L. L. Cloud, of Omaha, in a Chicago paper says: Last summer the girl kept complain-ing that she could never find any eggs in the barn. I did not think much of it at first but finally when the complaint was repeated almost every day I began to think it was rather strange that we should not get more than three or four eggs when we had at least five dozen hens, and so determined to look into the matter. It was more than a week, though, before I solved the mystery, and then it was merely by accident. I was standing in the barn one Sunday morning when a hen came cackling from her nest in the manger, and a few minutes after a big rat came from his hole, ran across the barn and climbed into the manger. I could hear him, and was idly watching to see what he was doing, when you can imagine my sur-prise to see him rolling the egg in front of aim toward the eage of the manger. After a good many efforts he finally succeeded. He paused there, gathering the egg up un-der his "chin;" he rolled himself completely around it, resembling the form of a dgehog when alarmed, then he deliberately rolled over the edge of the manger, and dropped squarely on his back on the floor, two feet below, thus saving the egg Immediately he began to squeal with all his strength, [and just as I was starting to put him out of his misery, think-ing he had broken his back in the fall, two other rats appeared on the scene. They ran up to the first one, as he lay on the floor, and each seizing hold of a hind leg began to drag him, egg and all, across the barn. Just as they reached the hole, and the first old grizzled follow disappeared, pushing the egg in front of him, it dawned on me that I

Success is not always a sure sign of merit, but it is a first rate way to succeed. It is about the same as the fact that the hardest dollar for a man to get hold of is the one he needs the most, and the outdoest compliment that can be paid to virtue is that the best lies we can tell are those which most resemble the truth. These aphorisms are like the preface to a story, say the "Quick or the Dead." They prepare the reader for what is coming.

HERE IT IS—fhere is no such thing as nothing, and anybody who believes it is a crank. If you don't believe this, come to cur store tomerrow and just take a swift but catching glance at the object we propose to show you, which is nothing more nor less than 2,000 YARDS of BATINTE dress goods, beautifully decorated with stripes, mostly of a pink color. This same Batiste is worth at least 15 cents a yard, but to do justice to the great American public we will measure it off at the low figure, the pairty sum of 5.3-4 cents a yard. This Batiste is 27 inches wide and if you believe that there were ever many such bargains offered before you are liable to believe that Jonah swallowed the whale.

With repeated and powerful doses quinine, chills and fever, in some one of its various forms, springs into active exstence again, often without the slightest apparent provocation. To extinguish the smouldering embers of this obstinate and recondite malady, no less than to subdue it when it rages fleroely in the system, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is all sufficient. When every resource of the phar-macopeds has been exhausted against it in vain, the Bitters conquer it—will re-move every lingering vestage of it. Nay, more, the Bitters will protect those brought within the influence of the at-mospheric polson that begets malarial dis-case from its attacks. Disorders of the ease, from its attacks. Disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, are among the complaints to be apprehended from the use of miasma-tainted water. These are both cured and prevented by the Bitters. netipation and renal com plaints, yield to its action.

Whether "a lie well told and stuck to afterward is as good as the truth" was de-(Me.) Journal man was sitting one day this reek, and it brought out the following story from a rather dyspeptic-looking man who had caten very sparingly: "I used to live up in the country," said he. "One of my neigh-bors, an unlucky, unthrifty sort of a man, killed a pig one day with the aid of a local butcher, and after the killing he said to the butcher: 'By jinks, Sam, I hate to out up that pig.' 'Why?' "Cause you see I'm ow-in' most every body around here a piece of pork, and if I cut up the pig Fil have to give most of him away.' I tell you what to do,' said the butcher. 'What's that?' 'Pd have the pig hung up out doors till twelve o'clock oht, then take him in and give out the next morning that he's been stolen. links, I'll do it!" It was a wonderfully fine plan, the farmer thought, and he left the ole hanging out as the butches suggested. About eleven o'clock the butcher himself came along and loaded the pork into his team. It was not there when the farmer went out after it. The next day, with a leng whisper. 'I say, Sam, somebody did really steal thatpig. 'That's right, 'said the butch-er, nudging him and winking wickedly at the same time 'But, by jinks, the pig was really stolen.' That's right, you stick to that and you'll be all right,' said the butcher, encouragingly, and he hurrried off, leaving his friend in a most bewildered state of mind, from which I don't think be ever fully emerged."

The Brompton Hospital for Consumptives, London, Eng., published a statement that fifty-two (52) per cent of the patients of that institution have unauspected kidney disorder. Prof. Wm. H. Thompson of the University of the City of New York, says: "More adults are carried off in this country by chronic kidney disease than by any other one malady except consumption." The late Dr. Dio Lewis, says the Consumption of Warner's Sate Cure, says case than by any other one mandy except consumption." The late Dr. Pho Lewis, in speaking of Warner's Sate Cure, says over his own signature: "If I found my-self the victim of a serious kidney trouble, I would use Warner's Safe Cure."
